

Building and Working Together

SJS Weekly News - 7th January, 2022

As I mentioned in my letter earlier this week, I hope all our families had some rest and illness free time together over the Christmas period. It has been a good start to the term and we look forward positively to the weeks ahead of us.

You will be receiving a year group newsletter today to tell you all about your child's learning this term. There has been some interesting activities already this term, as you can see from Year 5's fantastic bird feeders below! It is an important term for all of the children to push on with their learning.

Eamonn Reilly is visiting us next Wednesday to talk about his work as an author. Author visits are always interesting for the children; they get to hear about how the ideas for books come to life and hopefully inspire them with their story writing.

We've been talking about the New Year in assembly and making positive changes. The start of a year or term is always a good point to reflect and improve upon something. We also talked about positive role models and it was lovely to hear many of the children pick family members. We had some other excellent role models mentioned too, like David Attenborough and Greta Thunberg. It is important for the children to have aspirations to be the best they can and having people they really aspire to be like helps them on their learning journey.

Enjoy the weekend.
